The Moving On Workshop Series includes five training sessions, plus three additional sessions with a participant focus, where participants (individuals with disabilities) and their families/teams create their own Individualized Moving On Plan (iMop). The workshops were designed to focus on concrete, practical information that can educate participants and families and creatively address barriers to moving on.

Each workshop series includes a pre-session phone call, where information is gathered from each family to allow the LOV Inc. facilitators to customize the materials and sessions based on the participants.

Outcomes include:

- Increased independence while living in family home, practicing skills for moving out
- Identifying specific apartments or homes to move into and learning about affordable housing
- Creating a detailed plan of support needs and budget for support costs
- Creating a detailed budget of personal expenses
- Learning about technology, support services and financial support that can make moving on possible
- Connecting with potential roommates or neighbors with an emphasis on sharing support to maximize support dollars

Cost: Each team (see above) will pay $125.00 per session to participate in the workshops for a total cost of $1000.00. This can be paid privately or with IRIS/Family Care/CLTS funds. The cost covers the materials, facilitator's time, customized support for each participant and team, and resources to envision the next steps. You can opt out of the participant focused sessions and materials, which brings the cost down to $625 for the series.
